Supplemental Tables – Felony Case Continuances

One potential source of delay to criminal case processing is continuances. Cases are continued when a judge grants a state or defense motion for a case to be continued rather than move forward with a hearing or trial. If the state and defense jointly request a continuance, a judge does not have discretion to deny the joint continuance. The Metropolitan Crime Commission collected data on continuances for all felony cases that closed in 2012 and the exhibit below shows average numbers of continuances for each judge. It does not include judicial continuances such as when a section of court was unexpectedly closed.

Average Continuances per Case in 2012

Judge	State	Defense	Joint	Total Continuances
Marullo	0.63	0.83	0.25	1.72
Landrum-Johnson	0.62	0.96	0.22	1.80
Buras	0.67	0.93	0.23	1.82
Derbigny	0.70	1.01	0.33	2.05
Van Davis	0.97	0.74	0.38	2.09
Herman	0.50	1.36	0.45	2.30
Court Average	0.77	1.11	0.47	2.35
Hunter	1.00	1.23	0.30	2.54
Pittman	0.80	1.18	0.63	2.62
Parker	1.03	1.19	0.46	2.67
Zibilich	0.46	1.99	0.24	2.69
White	0.98	0.74	1.32	3.05
Willard	1.03	0.94	1.09	3.06

Source: Judicial Administrator of Criminal District Court, OPSO, Orleans Parish District Attorney's Office

The court averaged 2.35 continuances per cases. There was an average of 1.11 defense continuances per case which was the most common type of continuance. The state or prosecution averaged less than one (0.77) continuance per case, and there was an average of 0.47 joint continuances per case. In total, 58% of cases had at least one continuance.

Numbers of continuances did not fluctuate greatly across sections of court. Continuances had a relatively low range from a high of 3.06 average continuances per case in Judge Willard's section of court to a low of 1.72 continuances per case in Judge Marullo's section of court. No single judge stands out as having significantly more or fewer continuances than his or her peers.

Continuances do not appear to impact judges' overall case processing times. Having above average continuances did not consistently translate into longer case processing times. For example, Judge White had the second-highest number of continuances and averaged 3.05 continuances per case while Judge White's median case processing time of 175 days was generally consistent with overall court performance.

The exhibit below presents average continuances based upon the types of felony case along with the median case processing time for specific types of cases. As it shows, there were slightly more continuances in cases with greater median case processing times.

Average Continuances and Median Case Processing Times for Specific Types of Cases in 2012

	Average State Continuances	Average Defense Continuances	Average Joint Continuances	Average Total Continuances	Median Case Processing Time
Violent Felony	1.19	1.34	.69	3.22	220 days
Weapons Felony	1.13	1.55	.61	3.29	204 days
Property felony	.57	.77	.39	1.73	124 days
Drug Felony	.60	1.13	.39	2.13	146 days
Other Felony	.59	.84	.36	1.79	122.5 days
Total	.77	1.11	.47	2.35	155 days

Supplemental Tables – Judge and Jury Trials

The exhibits below present total numbers and dispositions of felony judge and jury trials that closed in each section of court during 2012. Cases with felony charges that were reduced to misdemeanor charges are not included. For example, if a defendant was charged with aggravated battery but found guilty of simple battery in trial, then the case would not be included in the count of trials presented below.
